

For the first time in many years some of these quads will be making their own decisions, living and functioning in the community.

The first few months were very difficult. There was a shortage of funds and the residents were very inexperienced. Slowly but surely they started to cope and by the end of the year everything started to fall into place.